

POLICEMEN AND FIREMEN GIVEN RAISE BY CITY

Members of the city council unanimously voted at the meeting last night to grant the members of the fire and police departments another increase in wages of $10 per month. The increase was given with the understanding that the city would demand from the men of other departments and came as a surprise. Thomas Morrissey's appointment as head of the Janesville police department was confirmed by the council. Mr. Morrissey received his appointment from the fire and police commission yesterday afternoon. A short debate was held on the advisability of building a new bridge south of the present Jackson street bridge to allow Mud Lake to be drained, thereby relieving the dangerous condition which exists from the stagnant water. No action was taken.

Bills Are Allowed
Alderman Ensign Ransom moved that the bills and salary lists for the month be allowed.

Alderman Dull moved that the city clerk draw orders for the Wausau Iron company for $8,500, City Attorney Roger C. McKinnon for $300 and Thomas McKinnon for $300.

On motion of Alderman Dull, licenses for contracting were given to Wheeler Construction company, E. A. Skinner, Arnold Fuchs and George Wikstrom.

Alderman Dull moved that taxicab permits be given to George Mortenson and Wendell Kilmar.

Max Feingold's application for a license to deal in junk was denied when it was learned that he intended to establish his junk yard in Riverview park.

On motion of Alderman J. Kelly the quarterly report of the fire department was received and accepted. The fire and water committee was accepted and placed on file.

Alderman Dull moved that the purchasing committee be empowered to purchase the necessary gravel to fill in on Belmont avenue. A permit to open a lunch car at the corner of Academy and Milwaukee streets was given to J. M. Aldrich and George Benwitz.

Alderman Dull moved that a permit be given to the Chicago and Northwestern railroad to construct a spur track from the present track on North River street to the Menzie coal yard.

Alderman Dull asked that a committee be appointed to investigate the cost of insuring the eight automobiles in the city. The matter was placed in the hands of the members of the fire and water commission.

Alderman Cronin asked that steps be taken to put in steps up to the detention hospital. The matter was left in the hands of the aldermen of the Third ward.

Invitation Presented
Mayor Welsh presented an invitation to the members of the council from the Wisconsin Homecoming, inviting the city fathers to participate in the parade on Wednesday and attend the dinner at the Y. M. C. A. Alderman Dull moved that the invitation be accepted.

Mayor Welsh in a few words told of the civil action now pending between the Wisconsin Homecoming and the Janesville Traction company. He asked that a special meeting of all tax-payers be held October 15 at which time both attorneys will present their sides of the case and at that time it will be determined what action would be taken.

Just as the meeting was to close Alderman Dull took the floor and asked Acting City Attorney Robert Cunningham if he could tell what was the difference between poker, dice and rummaging. The question was not answered by the acting district attorney.

GOOD-BYE, WEAK NERVES!
"Nothing wrong but my nerves." We hear it everywhere. Nervousness is a disease. A man or woman might better have a broken arm or leg than a shattered, run-down nervous system.

Overwork and worry drains the nerve cells of their strength and vitality; then come the sleepless nights, poor blood, nervousness, worry, and fear, that go with a run-down nervous system.

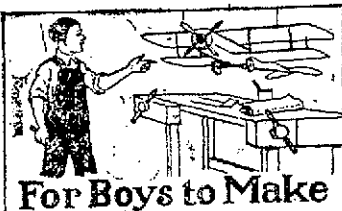

In cases of this kind, Phosphated Iron rarely fails to strengthen and build up the phosphated Iron capsules. It takes hold right from the start.

The way the majority of people "come back" is remarkable. You can almost see their nerves grow strong, steady and true. Their eyes sparkle, their cheeks are flushed out, and flushed with the healthy, ruddy glow that only pure, red, ironized blood can give, and their whole system is alive with youth, energy and good spirits.

Phosphated Iron will do all this for old or young if they will give it a chance. Get a box today and watch it build you up.

Having Fun With the Pulleys
By Grant M. Hyde.
"You know how," said Uncle Bob, "you can have more fun with pulleys than with anything else."

"Learn to make your own pulleys and save buying them. Take a small silk spool and with a knife or file deepen the groove to hold a cord running over it. A strip of tin, 1 inch by 5 inches, cut from a can, may be bent into a shackle and a wire or nail will do for the axle."

Apartment Freight Elevator.
An apartment freight elevator is run from the first floor back porch to the top floor porch outside the railings. The picture shows how it is built with a cigar box (X), running between cord guides (G. G.). It is pulled up and down by a continuous loop of cord running over four pulleys (P. P. P. P.) and once around the crank wheel (C). An old go-cart wheel with the tire off makes a fine crank wheel.

Gravity Scooter.
Between two clothes posts or trees you can build a gravity scooter. Fasten two pulleys (P. P.) at the top and bottom of one post, and around them run a continuous cord that makes one turn around the crank wheel (C). In this continuous cord is a knot (K) from which a cord (T) runs to a screw-eye (S) in the other post. The cigar box (X) rides on the track on grooved spools. When you turn the crank one way it lowers K and the car scoots toward you. When you crank the other way you raise K above S and the car scoots away.

Tackle Lifter
A tackle lifter with which one pint of water will raise almost five pints can be made with five pulleys, as shown in the picture. But the one pulley must have a groove room enough to move five times as far. In the same way you can build other kinds of tackle to multiply lifting power. Your school physics book or the big dictionary will show various combinations.

Two mothers appealed to Chief of Police, Thomas Morrissey, today to search for their sons who ran away from home yesterday with the intention of going to Chicago. The mothers unable to withhold their grief wept as they asked the police to look for the missing lads.

Both of the boys, neither over 19 years of age, departed yesterday. The mothers claim they were headed for Chicago. Chief Morrissey telephoned the Chicago police and late today received word that no trace of the boys had been found.

HOOVER COMES TO DEFENSE OF TEACHERS
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
San Francisco, Oct. 7.—Warning to teachers in American colleges, the nation will be face to face with a dangerous radicalism from the centers of higher education, was voiced by Herbert Hoover, former federal food administrator, in an address before the teachers of California at a dinner last night.

"Out of the war has arisen a silhouette of class distinction and class hatred that is not to be obliterated with a few words," Mr. Hoover said. "In our great universities the influence of the war has been felt."

Beginning today, all articles in the series, "For Girls to Make," appearing in the Gazette each Tuesday, will be written by Carolyn Sherwin Bailey, author of "Girls' Nickel-and-Dime Things," "Brightest Stories," "Boys and Girls of Colonial Days," "What to Do for Uncle Sam," and many other equally popular books.

Miss Bailey will tell, especially for the girls of Janesville, "the newest, the best, the most attractive ideas. No one is better qualified to do it than she. Her first article, "Bringing Outdoors Indoors," appears today.

structing and faculty staffs are hard hit by the present economic situation, which returns something like $1 a day to the educator, while the craftsman who repairs his kitchen sink makes more in fewer hours of work.

For Girls to Make

Bringing Outdoors Indoors.
By Carolyn Sherwin Bailey
Bringing outdoors indoors—how cheerful it sounds! A few sprays of bright leaves, a few little green vines with their roots and berries, a tiny pine tree, and you can make a host of pretty decorations for your room.

Leaves Waxed on Branches.
If you are clever with your hands, you can wax the autumn leaves on branches so as to keep their lovely gold, crimson, and brown until spring. Run an iron that is not too hot lightly over beeswax. Then iron each leaf, holding the branch so that the leaf lies flat on several thick pieces of paper. Lay the waxed leaves in a tall, straight, plain, white, green, or brown vase on your table or desk. They will transform your room with color.

A Border for Your Room.
Cut long, narrow strips of plain wall paper of a neutral tint, tan, gray, or green. Have a circular piece of glass cut to fit the top exactly. Spread a thick layer of dampened earth in the bottom. Plant the roots of little wild vines in it. They will need to be set in thickly to be pretty. If you were able to find a little pine tree about three inches tall, plant it in the middle and arrange the vines, with their bright berries, around the edge. Sometimes a very tiny fern plant will live bravely in one of these woody indoor gardens.

When the jar is well filled, sprinkle lightly with water and put on the cover. Decorate the top with pretty ribbon. Place it where it will catch the morning sunshine.

Potato Growers Are Asked to Watch for Wart Disease

Madison, Oct. 7.—Wisconsin potato growers are being urged to watch at digging time for the potato wart disease, one of the worst tuber diseases which has ever been introduced into this country.

The pathologists of the state agricultural experiment station believe that this dangerous disease has not yet made its appearance in Wisconsin.

The government has placed an embargo on imported potatoes, and the infected areas of Pennsylvania have been segregated.

The disease first shows itself as small spongy outgrowths which increase in size and may finally cover the whole potato. Warts form at several places on a single tuber, causing the potato to develop in a spongy, gnarled mass. The color of the growths is generally light brown at first, changing later to a darker color. The tubers may rot in the field or may rot in storage.

Soldiers to Be Given Veterinary Training
Madison, Oct. 7.—To meet the calls for veterinary training from Wisconsin's returning soldiers, the state board of education has asked the university authorities to establish the first two years of a course in veterinary medicine.

Replies to the questionnaires, recently sent out by Gov. E. L. Philipp determining how many of the state's soldiers and sailors would avail themselves of the $30 a month bonus, indicated that a considerable number wished to study veterinary medicine.

WILLIAMS BAY VOTES
ON INCORPORATION

(By Gazette Correspondent.)
Lake Geneva, Oct. 7.—To be or not to be an incorporated village, is the question that is agitating Williams Bay citizens.

Judge Lyon, of the Walworth county court, has ordered a special election to decide the matter for October 16.

The community there has had little community life, politically speaking. The street just west of the lumber yard divides the place into the towns of Linn and Walworth.

When election day comes the people on the east side have to ride some 10 or more miles around Lake Geneva to the town hall at Zenda to vote.

The people on the west of the road have to betake themselves to the city of Walworth, some 6 miles away, to express their opinions on public questions.

Then there is the matter of town improvements, such as side-walks, cross-walks, and electric lights.

Williams Bay has none of these things now except where the philanthropy of the land owners have induced them to put them in.

Nevertheless there appears to be considerable opposition to the movement to incorporate at the Bay. The opponents charge that there is an attempt being made to "put one over" on the majority of the voters and that taxes will be unreasonably increased.

Everybody's views on the subject will be given an airing at a public meeting to be held at the school house at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening.

WILL DISCUSS HIGH
PRICES FRIDAY NIGHT

Announcement was made today by Alderman Ray Horn that a mass meeting would be held at the city hall Friday night at 8 o'clock, at which time Henry Clark, president of the Co-operative Society of America, will give an address.

The mass here is being held under the auspices of the Laborers' Co-operative society of Janesville, said Mr. Horn.

Mr. Horn said that Mr. Clark had been engaged to address the meeting on the plans used in other cities to form co-operative stores.

The idea of organizing a co-operative company in this city will be discussed and it is our desire to sell from one to five shares to each person and allowing no one to own more than five shares," said Mr. Horn.

Mr. Horn said that another meeting of the stockholders would be held in the near future and plans formulated for opening a store.

Summer, Delavan, and James Grier Allen, Lake Geneva, have been invited to assist in the discussion.

The movement started last April when the county court and the state were petitioned by a number of citizens to bring the matter to a vote.

L. A. Hollister, Arthur Anderson, S. J. Noble, Gottlieb Henne, Dr. J. J. Fulk, Alfred Phil, Andrew Carlquist, and Walter Jewel were among those signing the petition.

The county court has appointed E. H. Hollister, H. V. Brumgard, and S. B. Barrett as a board of inspectors for the election.

More than 13,000 men are building your Maxwell

IF you buy a tire here, another there, you cannot expect uniform tire mileage and service.

Making Firestone Gray Side-wall Tires standard for your car means you can forget the tire question. And after that decision, the renewal question will come up far less frequently.

You can easily prove this by equipping with Firestones now.

Imagine 13,000 men devoting themselves to a single Maxwell. Yet that is the picture which a little journey through the eight great Maxwell plants supplies.

If they built but that one car in a day its cost to you would represent a king's ransom.

But they are so well organized, their work so very definite, they are so expert in the special one thing they do, and they are aided by so many thousands of uncanny and superhuman machines, whose accuracy is down to 1/1000 of an inch, that you pay but a small price for a Maxwell.

A great aid to the economy of manufacture is the use of many, many millions of dollars so that a 10-cent piece saved on a bit of material often runs into amazing figures.

Thus the big staff of purchasing experts for Maxwell become your purchasing experts and the saving goes on to you in the price.

$985 is indeed a small sum to pay for a great value in a great car like Maxwell.

WELCOME THEM TOMORROW

Tomorrow is set aside for our war heroes. It is the day when we of Rock county officially welcome the men and women who went to war and who made it possible for us to live in peace and security. We have been proud of their achievements and as they came back singly or in groups we individually gave them hearty handclasp and the greetings from hearts filled with gladness at their safe return and pride for their splendid sacrifices and devotion to duty.

But tomorrow we will express in joyous fashion our feelings. We will throw the city open to them. They can have what they want. It is theirs for the day. Entertainment has been provided for them from early morning until late at night.

Tomorrow we are going to witness a spectacle that perhaps will never be equalled in the history of the county. We will see the men who went to war swing down the streets in the uniform which is a symbol of liberty and courage. All of them will not be able to march with the jaunty step that marked them as American soldiers when they left us, for some have been wounded, but their hearts will be as full of pride and joy when they pass the homefolks on the curb as they were when they hurried to answer Uncle Sam's call for help.

Some of the familiar faces will be missing for many are sleeping in graves in France and this country. But in the vacant ranks will be the spirits of the sons who gave their all for democracy's cause. For them we will hold a memorial service.

This will be the opportunity for Rock county to show her heroes a good time. Citizens, come early and stay late. Let us give the boys the time of their lives! Let us give them a rousing welcome they never will forget!

ROOSEVELT DEMANDED AMERICANIZATION

Theodore Roosevelt once said: "The wisest and quickest way to Americanize the immigrant is to make him understand that here in America we have at least waked up to our needs, and that henceforth every man, whether born here or abroad, owes this country the fullest service of body and of soul." And no man ever had the good of America closer at heart, or was a better friend of the immigrant.

It is the manifest duty of the immigrant to make himself a citizen of the land of his own choosing; it is our manifest duty to see that he does so.

The mere taking out of naturalization papers does not fulfill his obligation. He must learn the language, or he remains one of an alien racial group; he must educate his children in the ways and ideals and traditions that are ours; and he must, insofar as is possible, absorb the traditions of the United States.

This is a large order, and when it is not filled, we are ourselves partly to blame. We have permitted the immigrant to live in the worst environment, the slums of our cities, where he is drawn to the local group of his fellow-countrymen through his own loneliness, and where his first keen ambition to become a real American is smothered in the growing apathy of indifference.

We owe him a decent environment, where he can meet and come to understand Americans. Where, in other words, he will have a fair chance.

The first and foremost requirement must be that he shall learn our language. Until he does, he is isolated. It is unfair to the immigrant and to us that he should be permitted to come here and live for years without speaking, reading, or writing English.

So long as we have millions of foreign-born who cannot speak the language of the country, so long shall we have an unstable, potentially dangerous group, the prey of tin-American demagogues and unscrupulous politicians.

Theodore Roosevelt knew this. "Unless we are thorough-going Americans, and unless our patriotism is part of the very fibre of our being, we can neither serve God nor take our own part. Whatever may be the case in an indefinitely remote future, at present no people can render any service to humanity unless as a people they feel an intense sense of national cohesion and solidarity. The man who loves other nations as much as he does his own, stands on a par with the man who loves other women as much as he does his own wife. The United States can accomplish little for mankind, save in so far as within its borders it develops an intense spirit of Americanism."

At the present time, with the Old World torn and weakened, America is more than ever the land of opportunity. Men and women from many lands will come to us. Now, as never before, it is vital that this truth be driven home to them; that, seeking what we have to give, they will be made to realize that they owe a debt to the United States.

And the beginning and end and the middle of this debt is that they make, or be forced to make, all effort to become Americans at heart.

The Roosevelt Memorial association, with committees in every state of the union, will in the week of October 20-27th hold meetings in memory of the great American, and receive gifts of money to build him permanent memorials. We shall all hear of these meetings; many of us will attend them. There is not one of us who loved him who can better serve the country to which his life was dedicated than by bearing in mind what he said and wrote about our foreign-born.

MORE MEAT TO COME FROM BETTER SIRS

The definition of the term "purebred sires" is written in one word—economy. There are many definitions, many of them learned and long, that might be written, but the breeding experts of the United States department of agriculture, when they met recently to launch the state-and national crusade for "Better Sires—better Stock," agreed that the primary meaning of it is economy.

The scrub hog requires a certain number of bushels of corn to make 200 pounds of pork. The purebred or high-grade hog takes the same number of bushels of corn and makes 300 pounds of pork. The purebred or high-grade cow makes three gallons of milk out of the same quantity of silage that the scrub cow uses to make a gallon and a half of milk. These figures are not meant to be scientifically exact, of course, but merely to illustrate the principle. The result is that the farmer gets more pounds of salable product out of his feed when he uses purebred sires at the head of his herds and flocks. He gets more money and his family

ALL THAT LIFE CAN GIVE.
When the gentle mother's singing, and the children are at play,
And the home seems filled with laughter at the ending of the day,
I can settle down contented and discover there and then
That I'm owning all the gladness that life has give to men.

When the little ones are healthy and the mother wears a smile,
I don't need to sigh for riches for I've everything worth while;
When the nights are calm and peaceful and the daily tasks are o'er,
I find that I'm possessing all that men are striving for.

When I'm free from all distraction and my thoughts are running clear,
When the sound of happy children is the music that I hear,
Through the sham of earthly glory and its golden lure I see,
Though I've neither fame nor fortune, all their joys belong to me.

He that finds his loved ones happy when his daily tasks are through,
And has brought them to contentment, has done all that man can do.
For the purpose of all struggle, when the clash and clamor cease, lives better. But something else happens. When he sells more pounds of a better class of meat or more gallons of rich milk, he feeds the city family better than he did when he kept scrub stock. The final result of purebred sires is that the farmer makes more money and the city family gets more and better food probably at lower prices.

The crusade, the experts say, eventually will tend to result in reducing the cost of living to the consumer without taking the difference out of the pocket of the producer. For that reason, they point out, the city man has a definite, money interest in the better sires crusade. While he can hardly be expected to put the same amount of effort into it that the live stock breeder should, he is expected to give encouragement and aid to the program whenever the opportunity offers. And there will be no lack of opportunity, particularly in the smaller cities and towns where the farmers are in close contact with the city business men.

THE NEW POLICE CHIEF

Citizens of Janesville will read with satisfaction the announcement that the police and fire commission has made Tom Morrissey chief of police, and that the city council has confirmed the appointment.

Chief Morrissey is the oldest man on the force and in the years he has served has been loyal to duty and considerate of the public. He has shown his fitness for the place by bringing out of chaos a department which was demoralized a few short months ago. He has inspired the members of his department with loyalty and energy and has won their respect and admiration by his fairness.

Chief Morrissey in his short term as acting chief has performed the duties of his office without fear or favor and has insisted that outside interference should not swerve him from his duty.

The people of Janesville congratulate Chief Morrissey and will stand back of him for a clean and honest administration of the police department.

The Race Conflict

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—The American negro really believed that the defeat of Germany would make the world "safe for democracy," and that in such a world he would enjoy rights and privileges which have long been denied him. He is bitterly disappointed to find that the world war, in which he bore a part, has not made much difference in his social, political and industrial status.

This disappointment on the part of the negro, who took all the war-time promises quite literally in the immediate cause of the present negro unrest, according to Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones, a leading American student of the negro problem, is the most serious factor in his social, political and industrial status. This disappointment on the part of the negro, who took all the war-time promises quite literally in the immediate cause of the present negro unrest, according to Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones, a leading American student of the negro problem, is the most serious factor in his social, political and industrial status.

Dr. Jones is employed by the Phelps-Stokes fund, which is an endowment for the betterment of negroes and Indians. He has a long record of service in the study of the negro problem. Recently, most of his time has been devoted to the present acute race problem, and to the promotion of measures for its relief.

Racial Cooperation Needed
Throughout the south committees on inter-racial co-operation have been formed which have already gone a long way toward alleviating the race problem. In that section, Dr. Jones points out emphatically that some such organization, which will focus the best minds of both races on the problem of adjusting their relations, is urgently needed in the north. Washington, Chicago, St. Louis and Omaha will be on the road to a solution of their race problems when they recognize this need for cooperation between the two races.

The committees which are being organized in the south have each two sections—one black and one white. These sections meet separately. The negroes draw up a prospectus of what they think they should have in the way of aid and recognition from the whites. The white committee then meets, considers the complaints and suggestions of the negroes and devises means for bettering their condition. In this way, an agreement is substituted for mutual misunderstanding, and intelligent men of both races are brought into contact about the problem of race relations.

In one southern city for example, the negro and white committees agreed that the negroes should have equal educational facilities, justice before the law, as good traveling facilities as the whites, good houses, and recreation facilities. The race are pledged to work together for these ends.

Committees Get Results
These southern committees have in most cases among their members some of the strongest men in their communities. Atlanta has an especially strong and representative committee. Much good has already been accomplished by these committees. Newspaper owners and editors have been influenced to take a reasonable and constructive attitude toward the negro question.

A public high school for negroes has been provided in Atlanta for the first time. Through the efforts of the committee, unfair treatment of negroes on elevators and in street cars has been abolished. In other places, in one city an address on this subject has been delivered by a prominent white citizen to all of the street railway employees. In another southern city a petty court, which existed largely by arresting and fining negroes without cause, was abolished.

Since the establishment of these committees, the Ku Klux Klan organizations, which had been revived here and there in the south to "keep the negro in his place" after his return from the war, and incidentally to keep the negro labor from leaving the south, have to a great extent disappeared or modified their activities.

Dr. Jones is of the opinion that assaults on white communities and alleged arsonage and boastfulness on the part of the returned soldiers as a result of the unusual social opportunities they enjoyed in France, are really due to the fact that they have little to do with these riots. At best, these things are only minor aggravations. The most immediate cause of the troubles, the negroes believe, is that he did not gain more by the war, and the deep underlying cause is the economic fact of his growing need and demand for better living conditions and fuller opportunities.

Radicals Are Popular
Dr. Jones says that some radical negro pastors, newspaper editors, and other leaders of the race, are causing trouble by preaching and writing that the negro, having helped to fight this war for democracy, must have new rights and privileges immediately. If he has to use violence to get them, the more conservative negro leaders, who have tried to tell their people that they must be patient, that conditions never change in a hurry, that war never brings millenniums, have lost prestige by their moderate counsels, while the radicals, who preach violence are popular.

Thus one negro minister, as quoted at great length by a negro newspaper, urges the colored man to fight for his rights, and says that if 10,000 negroes were killed in destroying 10,000 whites, lynching and other crimes against negroes would come to an end.

This sort of propaganda, which is going on most of the time, has much to do with race riots. Negroes have never seldom been impelled to acts of violence by this sort of thing, but they have been encouraged in an arrogant attitude which provoked acts of violence on the part of the whites. Very rarely the whites are the actual aggressors.

But the fixing of the blame is not important. The important point is that this incendiary preaching and writing on the part of the negroes, like the forming of vigilance committees and the organization of mobs through newspaper publicity on the part of the whites, make violence almost inevitable. They prevent the intelligent racial cooperation which alone can stop the loss of life and property and national self-respect due to race rioting.

Negro Has New Idea of Himself
But even though these immediate incitements to violence were removed the present negro unrest would by no means be allayed, according to Dr. Jones. The underlying cause of this unrest is that the war has given the negro a new idea of his industrial and economic value. It is not the negro back from France, who is at the bottom of the unrest, but the one who stayed at home. This negro who stayed at home earned unusually high wages. He had for a time a better home, better school, better food, and usually shorter working conditions. He is reluctant to go back to a ten hour day in the fields, or to any other work which is not well-paid as the work he did during the war.

As a result of this feeling on the part of the negro, he is moving north. There has been a regular negro migration to the north throughout the war and since the war. In the north the negro often gets work at a higher pay, gets at least an ostensible political equality with the whites, he escapes jim-crowism and perhaps some other forms of racial discrimination. But he finds himself in cities where there are no special sections for him to live in, no recreation facilities for him.

In his attempt to find a home and live a normal life, he comes into contact with white people who are not used to coming into contact with him. Conflict results inevitably. In the north the housing problem has had much to do with race conflict. In one great city where more or less rioting has been going on for years, the trouble started with a fight on a bathing beach, and was aggravated by the efforts of a local politician to exploit the growing race feeling.

South Resents Departure
Meantime in the south, the departure of the negro is resented. The south had the negro laborer long that it has perhaps not fully appreciated his value. Now that he is beginning to leave, the south is resenting the loss. Few of the negroes have been stopped by men with cocked guns from boarding trains for the north. Organizations have been formed to check the exodus of negroes if necessary. All this has caused a tension in the south as well as in the north. But the south, with its committee on inter-racial co-operation, seems to be moving toward a solution.

The south has always understood the negro pretty well, the best of its people have always been interested in his welfare. Now the south is gaining a better appreciation of the negro's economic value, and that prompts much for the future. But in the north the situation is still big with trouble. Most of the southern cities which have suffered from riots since the war have proved much experience. Few northern cities have gone systematically about providing homes for the negroes who are coming to them. Few of them, so far as can be learned, have done anything more intelligent than to call out troops and to hire extra policemen to guard the whites. Thus there is a problem which will need study and careful handling.

GEORGE ELLIOTT PAGEANT

London.—A George Elliott street pageant and battle of flowers brought thousands of visitors to Nunston recently. Decorated cars representing incidents in George Elliott's life, the pageant was a triumph. The century week Elliott's works, local industries had their cars, and Warwickshire minsters typified by a car, on which men were at work hewing a huge closed with the George Elliott pastoral play by 2,000 local performers.

Q. Is November 11, the anniversary of the signing of the armistice, to become a legal holiday? M. H. A. As yet no legislation has been passed making November 11 a legal holiday, but it is generally expected that it will become such.

Q. Is so-called German silver still manufactured in the United States? T. C. A. So-called German silver is an alloy widely used in the trade. It is not silver at all. Manufacturers who sent out catalogues after the war describing their products as made of German silver received many indignant letters from the trade. Many of them made their catalogues over, and the general designation of this alloy is now "liberty silver."

Q. Are Jesse and Frank James both dead? W. F. A. Both of these notorious outlaws are dead. Jesse was killed in 1882 and Frank died in 1915.

Q. Why are the ships christened with champagne? K. J. A. It is a sailor superstition that it is unlucky to christen a ship with water, and sailor superstitions are tenaciously dealt with. The sailor further holds that nothing is too good for a ship's her christening, and insists on champagne as the most favored of beverages.

Q. Was there really such a character as Diogenes who went about with a lantern hunting an honest man? J. J. S. Diogenes actually lived in the time of Alexander the Great. He was a native of Sinope and studied in Athens. He was sold as a slave and brought before Alexander the Great with whom he discussed his cynic philosophy, and upon whom he made a deep impression.

Q. How long does it take to acquire satisfactory speed on the typewriter? S. L. A. An average student, practicing three hours a day, for three months, should acquire a speed of from 80 to 100 words a minute.

Q. Do debtors' prisons still exist in Great Britain? W. P. S. A. The prisons were a part of the British Isles for centuries but were abolished in England in 1869, in Ireland in 1872, and in Scotland in 1850.

Q. Who is Harold Bell Wright, the author of "The Calling of Dan Matthews"? J. G. G. A. Mr. Wright is a New Yorker by birth. He is 47 years old and lives at Hollywood, Cal. He was once pastor of the Christian church of Pierce City, Mo. In addition to being an author, he is a painter and decorator.

Q. What is the pay of a captain in the army? Y. E. E. The base pay of a captain is $2,400 a year. If he is given foreign service he receives an additional 10 percent. When he is not assigned to an army post where quarters are furnished, he receives certain allowances which amount to about $600 a year.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

A LITTLE SLICE OF LIFE
A neighbor of ours
Has a wife who packed a grouch,
Or always seemed to pack one,
She ruled our neighbor
With a mailed fist and did it well.
When our neighbor would come home

Late in the evening,
Steering with all his might
To get up to the front door
Without kicking over the geraniums
That lined the walk,
She would light into him
And he wouldn't "go to lodge"

Again for two or three weeks.
Well, the other day he came home
And he was all fagged out.
It had been one of those bad days
When everything at the office
Had gone wrong. He was surprised
To see a change in the dining room.
There was sawdust on the floor,
Two pictures of race horses,
And a brass footrail
In front of the sideboard.
There were rows of bottles containing a fluid.

"What the—what the—say—"
He stammered. "What's the idea?"
"It's all right, George," said
The wife. "I knew you would Be tired and so I fixed
Things up to make you feel at home."

"What's in the bottles?" he asked.
"Dandelion wine," she replied.
"I've been making it all summer.
Just a lil' surprise. Help yourself."
So, you can't always tell.

"To KEEP a fortune is scarcely less difficult than to ACQUIRE one; and where wealth is left free, as a rule it passes in three generations from shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves."

"We may safely trust those who have not made the money to prove adepts in squandering it."

These sage observations were made by a man who rose from "bobbin boy" in a cotton mill, at a wage of $1.20 per week, to "ironmaster" and philanthropist—who, dying at the age of 84, left the singular record of having given away more money than any other man who ever lived.

Mr. Carnegie's rise to wealth and fame was due to his own industry and thrift. He saved his earnings and invested every dollar he could lay hands on as fast as money came to him. He had paved the way to fortune while still in his teens—thru having mastered the arts of self-denial and SAVING.

THOMAS MORRISSY APPOINTED HEAD OF POLICE FORCE

Thomas J. Morrissey, the oldest member of the local police department, was named as head of the organization at a meeting of the fire and police commission here yesterday afternoon. Chief Morrissey has been acting chief for the past five months and his appointment as permanent head of the department came after Mr. Morrissey had demonstrated beyond all doubt that the department could be made one of the finest in the state of Wisconsin.

Chief Morrissey was kept busy during the morning receiving the congratulations of his many admirers. Mayor T. E. Weiss said: "I want to congratulate you and I am proud to say that your record as head of the department has been an enviable one."

"He is undoubtedly one of the finest chiefs that ever headed the local department and his appointment as permanent head is an excellent reward for the splendid work performed by him during the past five months," Judge Maxfield said.

Chief Morrissey said: "I have not made any appointments as yet but expect to name my night captain in a few days," said the chief.

ADAMS BUELL, IN RECITAL, GIVES RARE PROGRAM FOR BLIND

The Wisconsin School for the Blind was given a rare treat last evening when the pianist, Adams Buell, of the Marquette University Conservatory of Music, gave a recital of rare and beautiful music to a group of blind pupils of the school and a few invited guests were entertained from the beginning to the end of the program.

Unlike many programs presented by concert pianists, it had the merit of being unobtrusive and was of interest because of the many novelties and seldom heard compositions. In fact, some of the numbers were played for the first time.

Instead of the usual Haydn minor variations (that war-horse of the pianist) Mr. Buell played the beautiful set in A major, which showed his gift to great advantage. The next number, the seventeenth century Homage, by John Barst, was a bit of old dance music, which made an instant appeal by its simplicity and rhythmic charm. Mozart was represented by the beautiful minor "Adagio" feelingly played.

The last number of the first group was one of Liszt's little known small-er works, the "Capriccio" from his "Etudes" in D major. It represents Liszt in quite a different mood than is generally expected when that name appears on a program. Mr. Buell placed four numbers by Americans on this program.

The "Sonata Heroica" by Campbell, hands of the work and entire, worthy to take its place by the side of MacDowell. It was played with a dramatic sweep altogether convincing and proved to be the big moment of the recital. It is strange that other pianists have not played this sonata, for it is pianistic and beautiful and short. It is a number the American spirit in music. The audience was not in feeling this; and rewarded its performance with a spontaneous applause which must have been most gratifying to the artist.

Of the other American pieces, the Handbells "Puppets" was perhaps the greatest favorite. It is, as its name suggests, a sort of marionette performance with a hurdy-gurdy introduction, the spirit of which Mr. Buell caught to a nice degree.

The last group contained two Gaiety settings of Irish folk tunes. The "Country Dance" melody showed how possible it is to really "sing" on the piano, and the "Cork Reel" was a bit of colorful fun which made the audience want to tap their feet. Mr. Buell has a remarkable sense of rhythm, and this last number showed this quality to advantage. For contrast he played the beautiful Borodin "At the Convent," a piece suggestive of the peace and tranquility of the cloister.

After a great repose and pause, Mr. Buell affected his listeners not a little with the religious atmosphere it represents.

The closing number was the waltz from "Eugene Onegin" by Tschai-kowski. It was played with such verve and abandon, and feeling for the waltz rhythm that it fairly swept the audience before it. There is in Mr. Buell's playing, beside the decided and advanced lyric quality, a clearness and brilliancy altogether captivating, while at the same time he offers interpretations worth listening to. To a technique which makes light of difficulties, he adds a tone that is distinguished by a virile warmth which cannot fail to attract the attention of the listener. It may be safely said that Mr. Buell has attained a position where his playing may be compared to that of the great pianists of today.

From the opening number to the close, he held his audience in almost breathless admiration. Every number received round after round of applause, and those who were privileged to attend universally spoke of it as the greatest musical treat of their experience.

Pioneer Resident of Dunkirk Dies

James McCarthy, Sr., one of the pioneer settlers of Dunkirk, Dane county, passed away early this morning at his farm home, a few miles south of this city, where he lived for more than 50 years. He had been confined to bed for two weeks with what seemed a general breakdown, but before then he was fairly well, and was able to be up and around.

Funeral services will be conducted at St. Ann's Catholic church in Stoughton at ten o'clock Thursday morning.

The deceased was a native of County Cork, Ireland, where he was born Aug. 15, 1834, and as a boy of 14, he made his way to this country where he spent the remainder of his boyhood and early manhood in the New England states. On November 24, 1855, he was married at Lewiston, Maine, to Miss Catherine Driscoll, who, like himself, was a bit of old dance music, and who had come to this country at the age of 8 years. The young couple resided in the east until the spring of 1857, when they came to Wisconsin and settled in Dunkirk, where they made their home until their death.

Mr. McCarthy was actively engaged in farming until five years ago, since which time he has been taking life more easily. His wife died Dec. 18, 1917, and surviving the last survivor of the twelve children born to them. The children are one daughter, Mrs. Ella Nichols, of Dunkirk, and eight sons, Joseph, of Madison, Frank, of Perry, Ia., and Edward, all of Dunkirk. He was the last survivor of his family. An elder brother, Timothy, died in Janesville some 20 years ago, and a sister, Mrs. Edward Morcan, passed away in Beloit about eight years ago.

Funeral services over James McCarthy, Sr., who passed away Tuesday at his home in Dunkirk, were conducted by Rev. Thomas Myles at ten o'clock this morning at St. Ann's Catholic church. As pall bearers officiating at 2:30 o'clock services were held from St. Paul's Lutheran church. Pall bearers were Fred Thom, Albert Thom, Otto Schults and Henry Roehl. Interment was made at Oak Hill cemetery.

THE COW PUNCHER

Dave was not long in discovering that his engagement as coachman was a device, born of Mr. Duncan's kindness, to enable him to accept instruction without feeling under obligation for it. When he made this discovery he smiled quietly to himself and pretended not to have made it. To have acted otherwise would have seemed ungrateful to Mr. Duncan. And presently the drives began to have a strange attraction of themselves.

When they drove in the two-seated buggy on Sunday afternoon the party usually comprised Mrs. Duncan and Edith, young Forsyth and Dave. Mr. Duncan was interested in certain Sunday afternoon meetings. It was Mrs. Duncan's custom to sit in the rear seat, for its better riding qualities, and it had a knack of falling about that Edith would rise to the front seat with the driver. She caused Forsyth to ride with her mother, ostensibly as a courtesy to that young gentleman—a courtesy which, it may be conjectured, was not fully appreciated. At first he accepted it with the good nature of one who feels his position secure, but gradually that good nature gave way to a certain restlessness of spirit which he could not openly conceal.

The crisis was precipitated one fine Sunday in September, in the first year of Dave's newspaper work. He was riding with Edith and found Edith in a riding habit.

"Mother is 'indisposed,'" she said in the society place," she explained. "In other words she doesn't wish to be bothered. So I thought we would ride today."

"But there are only two horses," said Dave.

"Well," queried the girl, and there was a note in her voice that sounded strange to him. "There are only two of us."

"But Mr. Forsyth?"

"He is not here. He may not come. Will you saddle the horses and let us get away?"

It was evident to Dave that for some reason Edith wished to evade Forsyth this afternoon. A lovers' quarrel, no doubt. That she had a preference for him and was revealing it with the utmost frankness never occurred to him. One of the delights of his companionship with Edith had been that it was a real companionship. None of the limitations of a girl's sex consciousness had narrowed the sphere of the frank friendship he felt for her. She was to him almost as another man, yet in no sense masculine. Save for a certain tender delicacy which her womanhood inspired, he came and went with her as he might have done with a man.

They were soon in the country, and Edith, leading, swung from the road to a bridge trail that followed the winding of the river. As her graceful figure drifted on ahead it seemed more than ever reminiscent of Reenie Hardy. What rides they had had on those football trails! What dippings into the great canyons! What adventures into the spruce forests! And how long ago it seemed! This girl, riding ahead, suggestive of every curve and pose of Reenie Hardy. His eyes were burning with tenderness.

He knew he was dull that day, and Edith was particularly charming and vivacious. She coaxed him into conversation a dozen times, but he answered absent-mindedly. At length she leaped from her horse and seated herself, facing him, on a fallen log. Without looking back she indicated with her hand the space beside her, and Dave followed and sat down.

"Aren't you talking today," she said. "You don't quite do yourself justice. What's wrong?"

"Oh nothing," he answered, with a laugh, putting himself together. "This September weather always gets me. I guess I have a streak of Indian; it comes of being brought up on the ranges. And in September, after the first frosts have touched the foliage, it comes as though it was not necessary to say more."

"Yes, I know," she said quietly. Then, with a queer little note of confidence, "Don't apologize for it, Dave."

"Apologize?" and his form straightened. "Certainly not. One doesn't apologize for nature, does he?" But it comes back in September."

He smiled, and she thought the subconscious had narrowed the sphere of the frank friendship he felt for her. She was to him almost as another man, yet in no sense masculine. Save for a certain tender delicacy which her womanhood inspired, he came and went with her as he might have done with a man.

Forsyth was waiting for her. Dave seemed to have weather and excused himself early.

"What does this mean?" demanded Forsyth angrily as soon as Dave had gone. "Do you think I will take second place to that—that cool heaven?"

"That is not to his discredit," she said.

"Straight from the corral into good society," Forsyth sneered.

Then she made no pretense of composure. "If you have nothing to say, please get out of my sight. I will take care of myself."

Forsyth took his hat. At the door he paused and turned, but she was already ostensibly interested in a magazine. He went out into the night.

The week was a busy one with Dave and he had no opportunity to visit the Duncans. Edith called him on the telephone. She asked an inconsequential question about something which had appeared in the paper, and from that the talk turned until it turned on the point of their expedition of the previous Sunday. Dave never could account for the change in her attitude, but he knew he had asked her to ride with him again on Sunday, and she had accepted. He had ridden with her before, but he had never asked her before. He felt that a subtle change had come over their relationship.

He was at the Duncan house earlier than usual Sunday afternoon, but not too early for Edith. She was dressed for the occasion; she seemed more fetching than he had ever seen her.

Will Cold and Dampness Make Your New House a Failure?

Will scorching summer heat seep in? Will winter fuel bills run high? Not if you insulate between the walls and beneath the roof with Flaxlinum.

FLAXLINUM between the walls and beneath the roof of your new home will actually cut down fuel bills one-third. It will absolutely seal out all dampness, all cold, all summer heat.

Too many people never think how important good insulation is until after the house is up. Don't let this be your experience. Good insulation is an investment in comfort.

Make sure now that your new house will be thoroughly comfortable as well as good looking. Insulate with Flaxlinum.

For Proof Go to Your Refrigerator

It isn't the ice that keeps your refrigerator cold. It's the insulation between the walls. This keeps the cold in and the outside temperature out.

In most high grade refrigerator cars this material is, and for years has been, Flaxlinum. Perishable fruits are shipped from sunny California to frigid Winnipeg in midwinter and arrive in perfect condition, thanks to Flaxlinum.

You see Flaxlinum is a temperature-proof material. It has nine years' satisfactory use as a building insulator in all sorts of buildings to support our claims for it.

One-half inch thickness of it is equivalent in heat and cold resistance to four inches of back plaster or thirty thicknesses of building paper. And besides Flaxlinum is rat and vermin-proof and will not crack like back plaster when the building settles.

Flaxlinum is sold by leading building material dealers everywhere. It is specified by the best architects and endorsed by reputable contractors. If you do not know the name of your nearest Flaxlinum dealer, write us. Free sample and literature sent on request. In writing please state what kind of building you are interested in.

Paris, Oct. 7.—Turkish nationalist troops said to number upwards of 300,000 men and commanded by Mustafa Kemal, seem to have precipitated in Asia Minor, on a major scale, a crisis similar to that which arose in Dalmatia when Capt. Gabriele d'Annunzio seized the city of Fiume.

There is a feeling that the situation in the Balkans is becoming more serious.

There is a feeling that the situation in Asia Minor has gone beyond the control of the Turkish government and that the allied powers are helpless to afford any appreciable relief.
